SMALLPOX RAGING IN PENITENTIARY.

A Dozen Convicts Now Have the Disease in Prison on Walls.

MCCORMACK SUMMONED

Serious Situation Confronts The Kentucky State Prison.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 26.—The members of the State Prison Commission have become alarmed at the smallpox situation within the penitentiary here, and have decided to place the matter in the hands of Dr. J. N. McCormack, the Secretary of State Board of Health. Commissioner Finnell, in charge of the prison now, will communicate with Dr. McCormack, asking that he come to Frankfort Monday and look over the situation and advise what steps be taken to check further spread of the disease.

There are now about a dozen cases in the prison. The first case developed about a month ago. The patient was immediately removed to the pesthouse and all those who were exposed isolated, but this did not seem to put a stop to the spread of the disease. From time to time new cases would break out, and they would be taken to the pesthouse. Owing to so many many people living out in the city who work inside the prison, the city authorities of Frankfort a few days ago became alarmed and took the State officials to task about the way affairs were being conducted in regard to stamping out the disease.

It is highly probable that the factories in the prison will be shut down until the situation is relieved. As soon as Dr. McCormack arrives he will be consulted, and whatever steps he suggested will be taken.

Slaughter Indicted.

W. H. Slaughter, Jr., the Louisville coal merchant, has been indicted for involuntary manslaughter. In November he became involved in a quarrel with Fred Sander a tenant of his, and struck him a blow on the jaw, knocking him down. Death followed almost immediately, and according to the contentions of the defendant and his friends, heart failure was the cause.

Slaughter was dismissed in the Police Court. At that trial two negroes who saw the trouble swore that he kicked Sander after he fell.

COL. CRADDOCK, NESTOR OF KY. PRESS.

Death Of The Oldest Editor In The State of Kentucky.

50 YEARS IN HARNESS.

Veteran of The Mexican War And Editor of Paris Kentuckian-Citizen.

Paris, Ky., Dec. 26.—Col. John G. Craddock, the veteran editor of the Paris Kentuckian-Citizen, died, after a short illness, at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington.

About two weeks ago he slipped and fell on the pavement, hurting himself, and afterward contracted pneumonia.

Col. Craddock was born August 28, 1825, being the son of Richard C. Craddock, who moved to this section from Virginia. He was the Nestor of the Kentucky press. At the time of his death he was a member of the National Press Association and president of the National Mexican Veteran's Association. He received his education at Lexington, where he studied medicine, but suddenly quit his studies in 1846 to enlist in the Mexican War, in the Second regiment, Kentucky infantry, under Col. Simmes. In 1852 he studied law, but soon engaged in newspaper work, his first work being on the Kentucky Flag, established here in 1845.

The Paris True Kentuckian was established by a joint stock company in 1896, with Col. Craddock as editor and publisher. The paper being Democratic in politics, it received a liberal patronage. The immediate years succeeding the founding of this paper were those in which Col. Craddock shone to the best advantage as an editor and mold of thought in this section. In 1886 the CAPITAL - - - - $60,000.

Surplus and Undivided Profits, - $70,000.

The surplus of this bank, every dollar of which has been earned, is larger than that of all other Banks in Christian county combined, and in proportion to capital, ranks among the very first in whole State of Kentucky.

True Kentuckian was consolidated with the Citizen and the name of the paper was changed to that of the Kentuckian-Citizen.

At one time Col. Craddock was quite wealthy, but lost heavily through speculations made by a brother in St. Louis. His estate is probably worth $25,000. He has always been considered a liberal man and gave a great deal toward charity.

The remains were brought here and taken to the Elks' lodge room where they lay in state until the funeral took place at 2:30 p. m. The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, the pastor, the Rev. J. L. Clark, officiating, assisted by the pastors of the other churches. At the grave the ceremony was in charge of the Elks.

DEATH OF COL. CRADDOCK.

The death of Col. John G. Craddock, of the Paris Kentuckian-Citizen, brought a feeling of sadness to many of the newspaper fraternity of Kentucky, when the news was received on Christmas morning. Col. Craddock was one of the best known editors in Kentucky and remained actively at work until nearly 80 years of age. He was a delegate to the National Editorial Association at Omaha last year, and though growing infirm with age, he appeared to enjoy the proceedings as much as he did 25 years before. The writer first met Col. Craddock in 1880 and it is doubtful if he has ever missed a Press meeting since that time. He was an old bachelor and his age was, even 24 years ago, the subject of many a joke. In 1897 he went with the N. E. A. to Mexico and in the City of Mexico inquired for a sweetheart he had there in 1847. He found her grand-daughter and told her he came very near being her grand-father. He was eccentric, jovial, kind-hearted, and despite his economical habits, was liberal and benevolent. A short time before his death he furnished a "Cradock Room" in the Confederate Home at Pee Wee Valley.

The Kentuckian feels a genuine sorrow that the old veteran has passed away. Peace to his ashes.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

The forthcoming reports of the state bank commissioner for Iowa will be the most sensational of its kind ever published. It will show for this year almost forty bank failures in Iowa, with losses of over $12,000,000, and that eight bank officials have taken their own lives when the crash was inevitable. In addition, a list of half a dozen cases of defalcation, or forgeries, which did not lead to failures because the losses were promptly made good, is discussed.

"Frenzied finance" is held responsible on the testimony of many of the best bankers, for this condition. The defalcations and forgeries chiefly represent losses in speculation.

Nearly all of the Senators whose terms expire next March are candidates for re-election. Seward, of Nevada; McComas, of Maryland; Dietrich, of Nebraska, and Cockrell, of Missouri, are already beaten, and Dewey, of New York, and Quarles, of Missouri, have hardly a chance to succeed themselves. Rayner, of Maryland, and Burritt, of Nebraska, are two new men already elected. Hemenway, of Indiana, will also succeed Senator Fairbanks.

The fire at Sioux City, Ia., Friday night destroyed two entire blocks. Three hotels were burned, but all their guests escaped uninjured. An unidentified man was killed, but no other serious casualty has been reported. The loss may reach as high as $2,500,000, but the property was well insured.

The Atlantic Rubber Co.'s plant at Providence, R. I., closed down yesterday throwing 500 hands out of employment. But there will be just as many rubber necks as ever.

Sarsaparilla enjoys the distinction of being the greatest, curative and preventive medicine the world has ever known. Attorney General Moody has notified R. D. Hill, District Attorney at Louisville, that all guessing contests commonly conducted by newspapers and magazines are included in the statute against lotteries, and accordingly Mr. Hill will attempt to prevent all such competitions after January 1.

He was alone, but was seen by Mr. Ellis Roper, who secured assistance and he was taken to his home near by. Drs. Thomas and McDaniel attended to the fracture. The National Magazine for January, 1905.

Real life is the keynote of the National Magazine and especially of the first number for 1905. It rings true to American experiences in all parts of our vast republic-empire, from the noisy jungles of New York City to the silent, sandy spaces of Midway Island, our new cable station in mid-Pacific; from British Columbia to Porto Rico. Mr. Chapin's Washington letter carries a score of new and striking portraits of interesting men and women in public life.

Alexander Graham Bell tells his own story of how his sweetheart, later his wife, helped him to get his first hearing for his newly invented "mechanical toy"—the telephone—at the Philadelphia Centennial; and so hastened its general adoption by twenty years.

Dallas Lore Sharp, the naturalist; Charles Warren Stoddard, the literary essayist; Ethel Armes, the keen student of character; and J. F. Conrad, the new humorist from Iowa, contribute delightfully amusing essay-sketches in their several fields. Yone Noguchi pays eloquent tribute to Joaquin Miller, his benefactor and literary god-father—"The Poet of Light and Joy." Two strong serial stories begin in this number, and with several short stories will sustain the fiction standard of the National. H. H. Allen analyzes the "Political Evolution of Porto Rico" and Dr. Martin Cook illustrates his story of "Our Cable Station in Mid-Pacific" with thirty odd and quaint photographs. The poets of the number are J. A. Edgerton, Eugene C. Dolson, Joseph Mills Hanson and Frank Putnam. The Home department is full of humor and really helpful hints on a score of subjects.

Consumption

There is no specific for consumption. Fresh air, exercise, nourishing food and Scott's Emulsion will come pretty near curing it, if there is anything to build on. Millions of people throughout the world are living and in good health on one lung.

From time immemorial the doctors prescribed cod liver oil for consumption. Of course the patient could not take it in its old form, hence it did very little good. They can take and tolerate it for a long time. There is no oil, not excepting butter, so easily digested and absorbed by the system as cod liver oil in the form of Scott's Emulsion, and that is the reason it is so helpful in consumption where its use must be continuous.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Trumping Up Charges of Fraud and Persecuting Democrats.

THIRTY SENT TO JAIL.

Counted Out Enough Democrats to Change the Legislature.

Denver, Col., Dec. 26.—Three more election officials were sent to jail by the supreme court Saturday for contempt, making a total of thirty who have been sentenced for violation of the court's injunction issued prior to the November election. Isaac Goldman and Edward Sweeney, judges in precinct 2, ward 4, Denver, were sentenced to serve four months in jail and pay fines of $100 and costs each. The court declared that they had knowingly and willfully permitted repeating.

Clarence P. Dixon, clerk in precinct 2, ward 3, was sentenced to jail for four months and fined $250 and costs. The court said the evidence showed there had been repeating and a willful miscount of votes in this precinct, in which Dixon had acquired a fictitious residence just before election, and that Dixon had interfered with the appointment of a Republican clerk and with the supreme court watchers in the performance of their duties.

Attorney Samuel Belford has drawn up a brief to be presented to the United States Supreme Court in the application for a writ of habeas corpus for Michael Dowd, one of the thirty election officials who have been sentenced to jail by the Colorado Supreme Court on charges of contempt based on their actions at the poll.

The brief questions the authority of the supreme court to take jurisdiction of an election.

The precincts thrown out from time to time have changed enough seats in the legislature and the Republicans will control both branches and Peabody expects to be seated on contest proceedings, by ousting Adams, Democrat, who was elected governor by 11,000 majority.

The Cause of Many

Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deadly. It is called Bright's disease. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney troubles are allowed to continue, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and seething pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being obliged to go often through the day, and get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a simple bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. CONCERNING FINE PEARLS.

Their Value Has Increased Fivefold in Last Twenty Years Due to Demand for Them.

The value of pearls has increased five-fold within the last 20 years, the growth being the natural result of the steadily increasing demand for this beautiful gem, says the New York Herald.

India provides us with the most lustrous specimens, while whiter, less lustrous specimens come from different parts of the Australian coast. Thursday island, in the Torres strait, is entirely devoted to the industry.

The collection of the pearl shells in which the gems are found is the main branch of the industry. They are brought from the bottom of the sea by the divers, who go down to a depth of from 10 to 30 fathoms. They are used for the manufacture of buttons, knife handles and other purposes. The water is very salty wherever pearl shells are found.

There are two divisions of pearls—oriental, which are found in fish, and "baroque," which are imbedded in shells and require cutting out. These are irregular in shape and sometimes rough in surface. The process of cutting them from the shell is a very difficult and delicate one, and there are few men capable of practicing it with success.

The pearl is formed by the saliva of the fish, and it is supposed that it is due to irritation of some sort. Evidently the fish has felt a grain of sand or some irritating particle and has covered it with saliva, continuing the process till a pearl of considerable size is formed.

This has been ascertained, because when a pearl is cut in two there is always a small speck in the center.

The oriental pearl is by far the most valuable and round ones are in great demand for necklaces at present. Many attempts have been made to produce the pearl by artificial means, but without success.

Of late years the fisheries have been diligently worked, and from the fact that no new ones are discovered, it is safe to say that the pearl will continue to get scarcer and higher.

PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

Discovery of Protozoan Parasite Should Stimulate Investigation—Hope Even for Cancer.

The discovery of the protozoan parasites of malaria, smallpox, scarlet fever and yellow fever, says Gary N. Calkins, in Century, should stimulate pathologists and biologists to a renewed study of other diseases. Such study must lead to the further relief of human suffering, for as vaccination produces some slight change which makes the system unsuitable for growth of the smallpox organism, or as warfare on the mosquito limits the spread of yellow fever and malaria, so preventive or remedial measures will follow future observations and discoveries, and it is not too Utopian to believe that, before long, some comparatively simple means may be found to prevent or to cure diseases like scarlet fever or even cancer.

THE PEANUT.

Is Without Rival in the Favor of the Multitude.

We are told that the great doctrine of the solidarity of mankind is being enforced as never before by the discoveries of modern science: medicine, economics, biology, physics, in their latest developments, teach us with hitherto unapproached force that all men and all things are so bound together that what affects one affects all. It is an impressive truth, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Consider the case of man, the cotton crop and the peanut. Within the last few years the consumption of the peanut has vastly increased. This interesting legume has fought its way over prejudice and contempt to a place of unchallenged preeminence in popular esteem. Sneers have not prevailed against it. Contemner in the presence of the unparalleled popularity of the peanut hides at last its diminished front. Last year we broke the wrinkled shells of 5,000,000 bushels of pinders and ate some billions of arachian "nuts." If essentially the choice of a plebeian taste, if the rich and fastidious prefer a daintier delicacy, the peanut is without rival in the favor of the multitude.

But now observe. The plant arachis hypogaea demands an early spring, a hot and moist summer and a sandy, friable loam. But these are conditions required by another plant of great usefulness and value—namely, cotton. With this staple at a normal value, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee have found it advantageous to devote part of their acreage to the edible, at the expense of the sartorial, crop. But lately cotton has been going up, and the south is naturally planting it to the neglect of other crops; unhappily, almost to the exclusion of the peanut. This we see that such an unimportant fact as the value per bale of cotton affects human happiness in a remote particular.

WINTER FOOD FOR SEA COW.

Have to Cut Through Thick Ice to Get at the Eel Grass.

The man who does the marketing for the aquarium's sea cow has had to do some lively hustling this winter to keep that big animal supplied with food, says the New York Sun.

The sea cow is eight feet long, weighs 800 pounds, and has a healthy appetite. In the first 13 weeks after its arrival here from Florida, on September 3 last, it ate 90 bushels of eel grass, six bushels of fennel-leaved pond weed and two bushels of ulva, or sea lettuce, making 98 bushels of aquatic plants in all in 13 weeks, or an average of about 5½ bushels a week, which is about its present rate of consumption.

The eel grass and other things for the sea cow's table are gathered in Gravesend bay, on the waters therewith connected. Baymen say that the present has been the hardest winter hereabouts on the water in 25 years. On many days it has been necessary to cut through ice ten inches in thickness and often through ice of five or six inches.

Sometimes when the ice had moved out with a shift of the wind, leaving open spaces, access to the eel grass would be easy; but frequently the ice would have closed in, and then it would be necessary to cut holes in it to get at the eel grass below.

So the work of supplying the sea cow's table has been so far this winter attended by more or less difficulty; but there has never been a day on which the sea cow has had to go hungry.

An Everlasting Flower

Luther Burbank, who has evolved a new flower, everlasting as to petals and fragrance, is the most famous naturalist in the world. It is said of him that he is to horticulture what Edison is to electricity. On his farm at Santa Rosa, Cal., he was developing many new flowers, fruits and vegetables, besides adding new tints to old blossoms, and giving to the lily the odor of a Parma violet. Mr. Burbank was born in Lancaster, Mass., in 1849, and moved to California in 1876. He is unmarried.

BRAVE GENERAL NOGI

THE ARBITER OF THE FATE OF PORT ARTHUR.

A Man of Simple Tastes But a Great Fighter and Organizer—His Conception of a Soldier.

New York.—One day—it was toward the close of the fifth moon of the thirty-seventh year of Meiji (this is to say, 1904 of the year of Christian grace)—Gen. Nogi received a message from his majesty the emperor. It was the pleasure of his majesty, so the message ran, to confer upon Gen. Nogi the highest distinction for the fighting men of Nippon. His majesty appointed him as the commander in chief of our forces besieging Port Arthur, says a Japanese writer in the New York Independent. Gen. Nogi was happy. On the same day came the news of the battle of the Nanshan. To Gen. Nogi the report of the Nanshan battle brought the news of the heroic death of his son, Shoten. The general said:

"I am glad he died so splendidly. It was the greatest honor he could have. As for the funeral rites over his memory, they might as well be postponed for awhile. A little later on they may be performed in conjunction with those of the two other members of his family—of Shoten, his brother, and of myself."

Gen. Nogi is the type of soldier upon which the ideals of a modern day of the samurai would look down with pleasure. Some say he is somewhat out of place in the waking days of the new century. Simple, yet that rugged simplicity of a man who is too great for adjectives, his heart is in somewhat greater things than the polite accomplishments of the day. Both his friends and foes have styled him a peasant man. He is peculiar in many things. He is peculiar in his conception of the life of a soldier. In these happy days, when the soldiers of so many countries all over the world are given to the gold cloth and parade, he has put his conception of the soldier in the following sentences:

"A soldier is a soldier, after all, and after a man becomes a soldier he must be perfectly willing to lead a life that is somewhat different from the life of an ordinary man in society. It is impossible for him to enjoy liberty and wealth such as so many of his fellow-men seem to enjoy. I refer to this point more especially because of a simple fact—namely, that the soldier who would perform his duties with credit on a battlefield must, of necessity, have trained himself to perform all that is expected of him in the days of peace. There ought not to be any neglect or any defects in his daily life. The conqueror of himself in the time of peace must be a man if he would aspire to the honor, with any right, of being a fighting man under the sun-flag."

GEN. NOGI,

Unlike so many historic men of fame, who make free with splendid precepts and glittering periods and straightaway forget those beautiful virtues in the doling of their daily life, the general did not stop with mere words. There is a famous story told of him of his love for shojinryori. (Now, shojinryori means the food prepared for priests and monks.) It was upon his return from Formosa. He was appointed the commander of the Eleventh division, stationed at Zentsu, in the province of Sanuki. The division in question was passing through the busy period of organization. Devoted always, first of all, to his duty to the state, the general left his family in Tokyo, only three servants accompanied him. Not far from Zentsu there is a modest village called Kinzofu Mura; in the village stands a humble temple called Kinzofu, after which the village is named. The general found a little corner in the temple which never was meant to entertain anyone or anything more pretentious than an "out-of-the-world," as the monk is called in our country—a man absolutely indifferent to the luxuries of this life. There was a young priest in the temple who did the cooking for everyone who stayed on the compound. Upon the food, which is simple beyond all the dreams of simplicity, the commander of the Eleventh division sustained his life. For four years he lived upon the simple food of the monk.

McClure's for January.

Read McClure's for January!

There's one New Year's Resolution that will prove a pleasure as well as a profit. For, besides the manifold entertainment in its nine stories, it contains articles timely and pleasing, two of which are unique and helpful contributions to two of the most vital problems that American citizens will have to face in 1905, "Lynching in the South," by Ray Stannard Baker, will do more than many an act of Congress to break down the barriers of sectional misunderstandings on the negro problem. Neither academic nor partisan, it is the work of a trained journalist seeking, not to argue, but to show the causes of recent outbreaks. Although himself a Northerner, he finds that the South has no lessons to learn from the North concerning lynching. In "Tuberculosis, the Real Race Suicide," Samuel Hopkins Adams states, no less authoritatively than startlingly, the horrors of "The Great White Plague." He shows that modern science could alleviate and prevent the dread disease, were it not for the ignorance, prejudice and greed of many in our midst—including even a large class of the medical profession.

CHRISTMAS OBSERVED IN HOPKINSVILLE.

No Prettier Sabbath Day Ever Seen In Kentucky.

A DAY OF FEASTING.

Churches Had Morning Sermons But Few of Them Held Evening Service.

The beautiful, balmy Christmas day of 1904 will long be remembered. The day began with hazy clouds, but early in the forenoon the sun came out brightly and the weather was as balmy as springtime. The churches had the usual Sunday schools and morning services, but in the evening but few held a second service. At Grace Episcopal church special services were held.

The day generally was as quiet as any other Sabbath. Now and then in the early morning hours some enthusiastic small boy would fire a cannon cracker and at night there were a few Roman candles seen.

But more than ever before Christmas was made a day of feasting. Being Sunday, no business was transacted, and everybody stayed at home and enjoyed a good dinner, with no thought of anything but eating.

The express companies were overwhelmed with business and contrary to their usual custom made Sunday deliveries. The mail carriers were turned into pack-horses, so many bundles were sent through the mails.

There were many exchanges of presents and expressions of good will. No happier Christmas was ever spent in the city.

The merchants all did well and were thoroughly satisfied with their holiday trade and the disappearance of contagious diseases had brought a feeling of universal thankfulness.

The Kentuckian has enjoyed the greatest advertising prosperity in its history and many new patrons are being added to its subscription lists. Of course its Christmas was an unusually pleasant one.

In one Hopkinsville home the day was saddened by death. Mr. Chas. H. Anderson's mother died Saturday and was buried yesterday.

ESTIMABLE WOMAN.

Mrs. M. S. Anderson Passes Away—Loved by Many Friends.

Mrs. M. S. Anderson, widow of the late Clarence Anderson, died Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, at her home on South Virginia street, of consumption. She had been an invalid for several years and her death was not unexpected.

She was 64 years old and a member of the Christian Church. She was a daughter of Dr. Spillman, of Harrodsburg, Ky., and came with her husband to this city many years ago. She is survived by four children, Chas. H. A. Buckner and Traube Anderson and their sister, Miss Mary Anderson.

The funeral services were held at the Christian church at 10:30 yesterday morning, by Eld. H. D. Smith, interment at Hopewell Cemetery.
